

1. These are my favorite animals: bears, for their strength; lions, for their courage; and monkeys, for their cuteness.
2. Return to your work, and that immediately.
3. Yesterday I met a novelist and poet.
4. She ate the biscuits and orange-marmalade sandwich cake.
5. The coming of clocks caused a grave if gradual change in our social life.
6. You mustn't worry about your son. You shouldn't blame him either, or yourself.
7. • She said she had been sick for three days, but that she was getting better.
• She said she had been sick for three days, but she was getting better.
8. Dogs can show that they want to be taken for a walk, and in that respect have a language or means of communication.
9. Talking with others is a good way of analyzing our ideas and feelings by discovering how they look to others.
10. Some women often complain about what they feel is unjust.

11. His father writes scientific novels.

12. The author is the most often read of her contemporaries in the prewar time, but this is not surprising, for her novel was well ahead of its time.

13. Eddy had been dead only a short while when I graduated from high school.

14. • I bought a book which I had wanted to read.

• I bought the book, which I have not read yet.

15. In five years both Jane and Liz will turn forty.

16. You shall have a bicycle of your own when you get older.

17. My hat has been sat on.

18. A tree is known by its fruit.

19. This play reads much better than acts.

20. After all, it is the natural right of an employer to get the work done the way he wants it done.

21. "Any luck at all, we'll get promoted."

"Never with our luck."

22. I am willing to sing the song, but not now.

23. Laura avoided Carol's eager questions, and yet not her hug.

24. You can never thank him enough for this matter.

25. His performance left nothing to be desired.

26. • Not a few of the students were absent.

• Quite a few of the students were absent.

27. • I am not in the least afraid of it.

• He was admired among his colleagues, not least by the women among them.

28. She did not wish to see him; she strongly wished not to see him.

29. I couldn't possibly persuade Fred.

30. You should not buy new clothes because they are cheap.

31. • He could solve the problem in ten minutes.
• He was able to solve the problem in ten minutes.
32. • I must read the book three times.
• I have to read the book three times.
33. He said he would come and he did come.
34. Those shitty jokes of yours gotta go!
35. Her eccentric conduct has yet to be explained.
36. • The road was wet, so the car must have slipped there.
• That something could keep him up at times when he should have felt terrible was amazing to him.
37. • Phil has a lot of friends to support him.
• Phil has a large family to support.
• Phil has a good income to support his family on.
• Phil has no intention to support his family.
38. Bob appeared to have been sick in bed since he had grown into his teens.
39. I listened to everything he told me to.
40. I'll send you nine tenths of the money I promised you to pay.

41. • I forgot to lend him the money.

• I forgot lending him the money.

42. While young, I liked neither reading aloud nor being read aloud to.

43. The thought of him never being able to return home was a shock to me.

44. She used to say she wasn't used to speaking in public.

45. • The spectators excited at the game shouted loudly.

• The man lived next to a cottage named Graham.

46. I found a sleeping cat in the sleeping car.

47. If we could straighten the coastline of these countries out, it would be long enough to reach the moon and back, with enough left over to go around the earth at the equator.

48. A prey to fear, she has been sick in bed for three days since last Monday.

49. Put simply, money is, unless well used, the root of all evil.

50. • Pamela was scared out, fear of the tests having a heavier gravity than anything.

• Her head leapt from the pillow, staring wildly into the darkness.

51. • He is as wise as his younger brother.

- This is as good a place as any.

52. I waited for fifteen minutes — they seemed as many hours to me.

53. It's been five years since I met her. It feels more like ten.

54. She doesn't look much more than fifty.

55. The differences between the two nations were more apparent than real.

56. "Hey, don't you look sick?"

"I've never been better."

57. Bob felt it the more difficult to understand the Japanese the longer he stayed in Japan.

58. • This lake is the deepest around here.

- This lake is deepest around here.

59. Problems of pollution are affecting Tokyo as much as any other city and probably more than most.

60. The most careful man makes some mistakes.

61. • She denied the fact that it was known to everyone.
• She denied the fact that was known to everyone.
62. • He seemed to know nothing about the news, which had surprised me indeed.
• He seemed to know nothing about the news, which surprises me indeed.
63. She said that that that that that boy used was wrong.
64. The alarm clock beside his bed (which is hardly made) was broken when he knocked it roughly one morning.
65. These are the trees on the leaves of which silkworms feed.
66. There was something about these that I knew was right.
67. If you want to know what they are, you should also know what goes into what they do.
68. Eric spent what money he had on food and clothes.
69. No living thing can exist alone: it is part of a system where all forms of life are joined together.
70. In a sense, sport began before humans existed for, as we all can observe, the beasts play.

71. In investigation, I lost count of how many motels I visited. It would have been discouraging if I had stopped to think about it.

72. Suppose the sun should rise in the west, I would never change my mind.

73. I would never have said yes ten days ago.

74. Her attendance at the party might have encouraged them.

75. The heartsick cry, the alto moan of Jane's voice was pitiful. A scream would have been less harrowing.

76. You could have heard a pin drop in that room.

77. More than a thousand customers of the telephone company could go out of service were heavy rain to fill this manhole and water to get into the wires.

78. If only I had appreciated her patience as much as I should have.

79. • It's time for you to send the children to bed.

• It's time you sent the children to bed.

80. It was imperative that everything in the classroom be put in order.

81. Barely had I checked in at the hotel when he telephoned me.

82. You may have the loan now you have offered good security.

83. What would happen if all the children over the world mastered another language along with their own? Not just another language, but the same?

84. When Brian went out to the street, there was a road crew at the opposite side. He noticed that one of them rode a rock drill steadily. It wasn't so much that the man worked harder or faster than the rest, it was that he didn't stop.

85. You can't be too careful about that. Not these days.

86. Tom must be looking forward as much to Mary's return as she is herself to his.

87. It is not our teacher but you who are to blame.

88. Computed tomography is a medical method which uses an electromagnetic spectrum to form an image, or tomogram, of a cross-section of the patients' head or torso.

89. She is quite unapproachable, but it is equally, if not more, difficult to strike up a conversation with her sister.

90. Not since the sixteenth century have extensive fires attacked the mountain over there.

91. Upon hearing of the new idea, Fred challenged it.

92. Small wonder a man of his ability is so successful.

93. • He was sleepy at that time. She was also sleepy.

• She was tired at that time. She was also sleepy.

94. A man will be most dangerous if he feels too sad.

95. • I know Mr. Lee.

• I know of Mr. Lee.

96. They found the oyster bed, cleared the bottom of old shells, and then spread it with clean ones.

97. • Each individual is different from every other individual.

• The garbage is collected every other Wednesday.

98. For every millionaire, there are scores of poor people living on a pittance.

99. Ten to one Robert will win.

100. He is one-half as old as his sister.